Dresden, Octob. 27. N. S.

OUR Letters from Poland advise, that the Grand Vizier had order'd some Turkish Forces to be posted on the Danube, with Directions to suffer no Persons to pass from Bender to Constantinople, before they had first Communicated to him their Business at the Port. These Letters add, that the King of Sueden is still at Bender, where he is desirous to reside the ensuing Winter, unless the Turks will consent to conduct him through Poland into his own Territories with a Body of forty thousand Men. It is reported, that the Janisaries lately rais'd a Tumult at Bender, in which several Suedes were kill'd. All the Tartars are separated except a Body of six thousand Men, with whom the Cham is preparing to return into his own Dominions. They write from the Army in Pomerania, that the necessary Dispositions were making for the Siege of Stralsond, and that in order to prevent a Communication between that Place, and Stetin, the Prince of Saxe Weisenfeld, a Major-General in the King of Poland's Service, had made himself Master of the Penamunder Fort, and was preparing to attack that of Schwine. The Suedes expect a Reinforcement of eight thousand Men, under the Command of General Steenbock, but the Danish Fleet, which is said to be in sight of Stralsond, have orders to run all hazards rather than permit them to pass.

Berlin, Oct. 27. N. S. On the Eighteenth Instant the King of Prussia, and the whole Court return'd to this Place from Charlottemburg, and 'tis believ'd his Majesty will continue here all this Winter. Monsieur Tettau, heretofore Chamberlain to his Majesty, came hither on the Twelfth from his Estate in Prussia, where he has lately liv'd in a retir'd manner; and as he is return'd hither by an express Order from his Majesty, it is believ'd, the King designs him the Place of Grand Mareschal. Monsieur Rheden, late Chamberlain to her Prussian Majesty, having obtain'd leave to retire from Court, is gone to his Estate in the Elector of Hanover's Dominions, and Monsieur Swerin is appointed to succeed him in that Office. The Saxon Artillery, consisting of twelve Pieces of Cannon and a hundred and twenty Waggons loaden with Ammunition, past thro' this Place on the Twelfth, under the Convoy of General Fleming's Regiment of Foot, and a Company of Horse, and propos'd to join the Army before Stralsond on the Twenty-ninth. They write from thence, that Twelve Suedish Men of War have been seen on the Coast of Pomerania, and that they have sent two Danish Ships laden with Corn into that Place. These Letters add, that the whole Fleet is ready to sail from Carlscron, with the Forces design'd to be transported into Pomerania. It being expected that the Army of the Allies before Stralsond will be considerably re-inforc'd by the Body of Troops under the Command of General Baver, it has been resolv'd here, in a Council of War, to augment the Forces posted on the Frontiers, in order to observe the Motions of that Army, and secure his Majesty's Territories from any Inconveniences that may arise from the Neighbourhood of it in the Winter. Monsieur Kamke came hither on the Twenty-second from Carlsbad, and is order'd to return forthwith to the Czar of Muscovy, who is expected on the Twenty-ninth at Crossen on the Oder, where he will be attended by the Prince Royal of Prussia, who is prepar'd to entertain his Czarish Majesty at that Place, from whence, we are told, he intends to proceed into his own Dominions.

Hague, Novem. 4. N. S. Yesterday his Excellency the Earl of Strafford was in Conference with the States General, as he is frequently with the Grand Pensionary, and other Ministers, residing at this Place. Our Letters from Paris of the thirtieth of the last Month tell us, that it was generally believ'd there, that an Action had pass'd in Catalonia, wherein the Army of the Allies, had gain'd a very considerable Advantage over the Enemy. They have receiv'd Letters from Cadix advising, that two French Ships laden with Silk, and Coffee, from the Levant, have been lost in a Storm, near the Cape of Fenestrelles. They write from Dauphine, that the Snow beginning to fall in great Abundance on the Mountains, the Army under the Command of the Duke of Berwick is thereupon separated, and gone into their Winter Quarters. Yesterday an Express from the Emperor to Count Goes arriv'd here, and reports, that his Imperial Majesty has sent the Count de Wratislaw with a Commission to his Royal Highness the Duke of Savoy at Turin.

Whitehaven, Oct. 26. Yesterday arriv'd six Light Colliers from Dublin.

Plymouth, Oct. 28. Yesterday sail'd Her Majesty's Ships the Lichfield, Pearl, Lark and Bedford-Gally to the Eastward, with about sixty Merchant Ships, most for London. This Day sail'd three Dutch Men of War, with about twenty sail of Prizes for Holland.

Deal, Oct. 30. We have here the Crown, Monk, Centurion, Wincheſter, Le Moor, Mary-Gally, Queen's Ships. Outward-bound, the Nathaniel, Negus, for the East-Indies, Samuel, ——Smeaton, for Maderas. Just now came in hither Her Majesty's Ships the Lichfield and Pearl, with the Homeward-bound Ships from Portugal; as also Her Majesty's Ship the Lark, with several Ships from the West-Indies under her Convoy, both Fleets being near fifty Sail.
